

Delilah – My Cat Has Feelings

Do you think cats have feelings? Well, I do. I have a cat named Delilah. Her body is all white with a black spot on her head. She is always hyper. Delilah is always running into the doors.

Delilah always tells me when she is feeling sad by laying on the ground. Sometimes she comes to me and meows. I think Delilah is say to me, “Jacob, I’m sad. Can you make me happy?” So I tell her, “Yes, I will make you happy Delilah. Let’s go play!”

It doesn’t happen very often, but Delilah gets mad at me sometimes. Delilah gets mad at me if I step on her tail or paw. If Delilah is asleep and I wake her up, she gets mad. She stares at me with evil eyes and a weird look when she is mad at me. That’s how I know that my cat is mad.

Delilah shows me when she is happy, too. Delilah plays with her ball to let me know she’s happy. Sometimes my other cat named Tiger plays with Delilah and I know that makes her happy.

My cat Delilah feels lazy and tired sometimes. When she is feeling lazy, she tells me by laying down on my stomach and not moving. She even lays on Tiger’s stomach when she feels lazy.

I told you a lot of things about Delilah and how I know she has feelings. Sometimes she gets sad, mad, happy or lazy. There are different things that she does to tell me how she feels like meowing and playing with her ball. I love my cat Delilah because I know she has feelings just like me!
