If my cat Salem could talk he would say that being a pet owner is a big job. I require a lot of attention. Not only do I need to be fed and washed, I need personal attention like playing and petting. I also need something to stretch out my nails otherwise your sofa is doomed!!! You also have to clip my nails and brush my fur. There is more to being a pet owner than you think. I can't eat certain stuff. I need healthy cat food or a treat like Catnip. I cannot eat table scraps or I will get fat and lazy. I need to be on a diet. I need to have food recommended by the vet. I also need to be trained to use the litter box. I have to take bathroom breaks and if I don't go in the box I will leave you little treats all over the house. I know Salem can't really talk, but if he did I bet he'd say to treat him like a member of the family. But I guess I'll never know.
